Topics:

Generations in the Workforce:

This class focuses on the generation's "gaps" between all different ages within the workforce currently. This class explains each category while focusing on Y/Z/Alpha generations and how to communicate within these generations. This class also focuses on determining lies from the truth when interviewing younger ages compared to older generations and the basis behind "why they lie."

Mental Illness and Violent Behavior:

This class will present a general introduction to and a basic understanding of what makes a behavior "abnormal." Using the biopsychosocial model, an overview of the most common behavioral health disorders observed in persons who pose a risk for violence will be provided. Finally, participants will learn how mental health problems are identified and assessed in threat assessment investigations.

Integration of Emergency Management and Emergency Medical Services in Intelligence:

This presentation will focus on how these two units have successfully demonstrated working together in all types of incidents. The Integration of these two services in providing real time intelligence to the Fusion Center is critical to the mission of Information Sharing.

Human Trafficking Investigations:

This class will familiarize students with the definition of human trafficking to include federal and state legislation. We will also cover indicators, victimology, and the effects this trauma can have on an individual. Case studies will be shown as well as evidence to look for and how to corroborate your investigations.

Open Source Intelligence:

This Open Source Intelligence (OSINT) Class teaches attendees how to utilize basic internet search engines and popular social media websites to research potential threats surrounding specific major events occurring in your AOR, to include events such as elections and sporting events. Topics will include basic search techniques, geofencing, Boolean Operators and Search Modifiers, and more.
